

SNAMENOTZ FOUND GUILTY

Former Soldier Given Sentence of From One to Three Years in State's Prison—Mary Rose Gets Jail Sentence of One Year.

Joseph Snamenotz of New London, who has been on trial in the criminal superior court in Norwich, charged with receiving support from Viola Burr, who was used in a house of ill fame in that city, was found guilty in the superior court here Friday morning. He was sentenced to from one to three years in state's prison. When court came in Friday morning at 10:30 State Attorney Hull moved his argument after which Judge Greene charged the jury. The jury retired and were out only about 30 minutes and at 11:30 brought in their verdict of guilty.

The statute under which Snamenotz was convicted reads as follows: Any person over the age of sixteen years, living without labor or other visible means of support, who is maintained, either in whole or in part, by the earnings of dissolute women, not related to such person by blood, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.

Lawyer Douglas made a plea for leniency for Snamenotz. The attorney said that his client insisted upon a trial and asked he had not lived on any of the earnings of Viola Burr. Mr. Douglas stated that he has known the Burr woman for years and knows her father who worked for the government for years. She was left motherless when young but her father did his best to rear his daughter well. Her downfall was caused by a soldier, Mr. Douglas said he has talked with the Burr woman and told her to flee from the life she led for she was on the road that surely leads to hell.

Mr. Douglas thought the people at the bar should not be severely dealt with when the cases of others in the same business seem to have influence drag along and are eventually lost sight of.

He said Snamenotz was easily led and the army, where he had been, is not always the best place for a man. He is not crafty, wicked or black-hearted like men who commit the crime he is accused of.

State's Attorney Hull said that Viola Burr showed no shame at the life she was leading and it was a heavy one. He thought the sentence in this case should be severe enough to deter others and to show that the new statute under which he was prosecuted could be made effective. This matter was prosecuted to make conditions better and the defendant ought to be prompt and smart and severe enough to warn others not to take up this calling. The actions of the accused are a stain on the prestige of decent men. He said he would

STATE POLICE WORK IN PAST YEAR.

Most Prosecutions Were in Stratford, According to Department's Report.

The report of the state police department for the year ending June 30, 1913, has been presented by the commissioners of the state police to Gov. Simeon B. Baldwin.

The report covers in detail the work of the state police for the year in question. The report is tabulated by towns, the tables showing the number of prosecutions for each offense and the disposition of the cases.

During the year there were 1,243 investigations by the officers of the state police. These investigations were followed by 692 prosecutions. There were 201 deportations. Assistance was rendered the secretary of state in the investigation of automobile accidents, violations of the automobile law, etc., in 241 cases.

Brought in $15,117.68. The department received $36,899.34 from the state treasurer, $15,068.44 from the state treasurer and $14,433.16 in traveling expenses. Deputy sheriffs and other officers specially employed were paid $1,800.62, and $2,597.13 was paid for office expenses. The department paid to the state treasurer $11,361.68 and the sum of $3,754 was paid or payable to the state in cases in which the state police were concerned that were disposed of in the superior court or in the courts of common pleas. The total amount due the state through the efforts of the department was, therefore, $15,117.68.

The greatest number of prosecutions in any single town was in Stratford, where 99 prosecutions for various offenses were made. The greater number of prosecutions in this, as in other towns, were for violations of the automobile and liquor license laws. Seventeen prosecutions were made in Hartford, eight of which were for violations of the liquor license law. Eleven cases were prosecuted in New Haven, five for violation of the liquor license law, and 14 in Bridgeport.

Regulating Moving Picture Houses. An important feature of the work of the department is the regulation of moving picture theatres and the enforcement of the law regarding their operation and management. One of the requirements of this law is that inspections must be made by the state police of the plans for all moving picture houses to determine their compliance with the provisions of the law regarding fire prevention. The statistics of this work show the large recent growth of the moving picture business. The department also examines moving picture machine operators for licenses.

During the year 423 inspections were made and 267 buildings and booths were approved for moving picture exhibitions. One hundred and ninety-one moving picture operators were examined, of which 178 were licensed. Of the operators' licenses in force in 1912-13, 257 were renewed for 1913-14. Fees received for new licenses amounted to $337 and for the renewal of licenses $267. The fees received for the inspection of the booths, premises and booths amounted to $2,240.67.

Unclaimed Letters. The list of unclaimed letters at the Norwich post office for the week ending Oct. 4, 1913 is as follows:

Mr. Kennedy told him that he had been charged with being a traitor to his own church and to his race because of his support of William E. Thoms. He said he did not know to what church, if any, Mr. Thoms belonged, but he did know that he had all the qualifications for the office he had been recommended for. He assured the attorney general that he still wanted Mr. Thoms appointed, but that he had said so to the board of directors in the matter and that he should not again call to press his claim.

Senator Thomas W. Spellacy of Hartford, was an early morning caller on the president yesterday. He asked the president to look up his record and his qualifications and to tell him if on the showing made he could be appointed provided he could secure the endorsement of the Connecticut delegation. He said he did not want to go to the delegation with a request that they endorse him unless he was reasonably certain that he could be appointed. When seen just prior to his departure Mr. Spellacy said he is to join his wife, Mr. Spellacy said that he had a very pleasant talk with the president and would speak of what the president told him.

The entire committee of one thousand will assemble at Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 10-13, to participate in the biennial convention of the Anti-Saloon League, and from there go directly to Washington in special trains to meet the president by appointment. It is possible that Bryan will be asked to introduce the committee to the president.

"77" COLDS

A hard stubborn Cold that hangs on, is broken up by Humphreys' "Seventy-seven"

You may well be apprehensive of catching Cold, with the fear of its hanging on and running into something more serious—

If you will carry a vial of "Seventy-seven" and take a dose at the first feeling of lassitude, or even at the first chill or shiver it will break up your Cold at once.

If you wait until your bones begin to ache; till you begin to cough and sneeze, it may take longer.

"Seventy-seven" is a small vial of pleasant pellets, fits the vest pocket. All Drug Stores, 25cts., and $1.00 or mailed.

THE RELIGIOUS ISSUE IN JUDGEMENT President's Secretary Denies Statements of Connecticut Papers.

(Special to The Bulletin.) Washington, Oct. 2.—The publication in some of the Connecticut papers of the charge that the reason Thomas F. Noone was not appointed judge of the U. S. court for the Connecticut district was that he was an Irishman and a Catholic, has roused the indignation of such of the members of the delegation now in Washington. Representative Kennedy went to the White House yesterday morning to ask an explanation of the president, but was unable to see him. He did, however, talk with the attorney general, to the president and was assured that the question of religion did not enter into the matter at all.

When the question was asked of Attorney General McReynolds, he said: "The idea is so utterly untrue and ridiculous that it is hardly worthy of a denial. As a matter of fact the question did not enter into the matter at all, and what is more, it will not be allowed to enter into the question as to who shall, or shall not, be appointed to the vacant judgeship."

Mr. Kennedy told him that he had been charged with being a traitor to his own church and to his race because of his support of William E. Thoms. He said he did not know to what church, if any, Mr. Thoms belonged, but he did know that he had all the qualifications for the office he had been recommended for.
